Learn how to participate in the largest free knowledge project in the world by joining the community that has built the seventh most visited website on the internet. Wikipedia is a free online encyclopaedia created by volunteers covering all areas of knowledge. Discover how you can participate by contributing to this body of free knowledge for the betterment of everyone in the world - expanding information on topics that you are passionate about or adding creative content that will better inform thousands of people. All types of knowledge and all types of people are welcome to join. This workshop will be done in a relaxed atmosphere and in a conversational manner.

Participants must have internet access and must create a username before the event.
